ELECTION - ??? - RESULTS

Laurie Kellen
First-President
(S.A.C.)

I have worked with the Student Council before. I was very active on the Social Committee and my last year I was nominated for president, but unfortunately I had to decline. I lost the election for the first vice-presidency, but I remained an active council worker as co-ordinator.

This past summer has been a Student Council summer for me as well. Last year George Brown College formed the Ontario Federation of Community College Students and I have just recently completed the skeleton constitution for that organization. Now I am vice-president of one of the greatest student bodies in Ontario and I will work for you to the utmost of my ability and extent of my experience.

Attended Runnymede C.I. here in Toronto.

Served on Student's Council for five years in various capacities ranging from grade representative to chairman.

Joined Royal Canadian Navy after high school and was sent to short service officer's school C.O.S. Venture in Esquimalt B.C. ... was on wardroom staff and a Division Representative ... graduated and was sent to Administration School in Montreal, again a representative ... went to sea on navigation and operation courses ... went flying and washed out ... resigned from navy in favour of going back to school.

On Student Power -- strong believer in George Brown's favourite quote from Junius ... "The subject who is truly loyal to the chief magistrate will neither submit to nor advise arbitrary measures".

On Elections -- points out apathy in student body as a whole: surely out of eight hundred students more than a couple want, and feel qualified to help organize and run their own Administration if for no other reason than to see what happens to the twenty-five dollars they have paid or better still have some say in what it is going to be spent on. Aims --- a bus service between the campuses running at least once a day, perhaps at three o'clock ... as there is a definite need for some students to communicate with Nassau on matters of administration for the gym facilities, and the library for research projects.

-- some recreation facilities at the campuses in the form of chess sets, crib and dart boards to be available at lunch periods and after three.

-- a transport pool organized through the S.A.C. to assist out of town students in getting lifts to or close to their homes on weekends and holiday weekends. -- to be available to any student and attempt to help him or her with any difficulties that might fall into the sphere of the S.A.C. ent Council. I will certainly try my best to uphold this position and fulfill the requirements expected of me.

Garry Gordon.

My pre-college education was evolved around the Borough of Scarborough. Here I attended Midland Avenue Collegiate Institute. I took advantage of the facilities and extra-curricular activities offered by the institution. On completion of my Grade XII, I enrolled as an apprentice chef at George Brown College. Upon completion of my apprenticeship course, I transferred to the Food Service Administration Course, of which I am presently enrolled in. I am very proud to be part of George Brown College and as a member of the Student Council

WHAT ELECTION ?

During the week of Sept 16-20, it may have come to the attention of some G.B.C. students that a strange, fast-moving, crazy, frustrated, bug-eyed individual lurked through the school halls and frosh activities and never once closed "it's" mouth, (except for when "it" was adopted as a home-stead for friendly passing-by insects or someone who mistook it for an ultra-modern garbage disposal).

This strange "thing" belongs to a secret society known as the S.A.C. and carried (during the above mentioned weeks) special papers with which "it" tried to pass on to the supposed sane, human, (you too frosh) society of G.B.C. Everyone honored this poor "object" by taking the papers and then used them for various, well-thought-of uses. For example: cleaning eyeglasses, blowing noses (hygiene you know!), wiping shaving cream and tomatoes off of frosh and with girls' instinctive, domesticated ways...took the papers home to swat flies with, cover wet floors with and provide comfort for Kitty's box! How frustrating it must have been for this S.A.C. member, for every time "it" thought "it" was finally getting through to a nice, friendly frosh...some idiot would blow a whistle and POW! ... all you could see were these human beings (sound in mind and body) on the ground, waving their limbs and yelling, "It's a dead horse!"

Forget it S.A.C.! Go home where you belong...take care of your laryngitis, "drink liquids, get plenty of rest and take "beep beep"! You can rest assured that although the G.B.C. society were hard to get through to this year, don't worry...next year they'll recognize you! Meanwhile, we have managed to pull through with the best S.A.C. executive yet!

For president we have Ron Lesley whose wisdom is almost frightening! For 1st vice-president we have Laurie Kellen who assures us that he's had plenty of experience (?) and besides (as you can see) we have no fear of losing him, for he's always finding himself anyway! Then there is Lee McGuire for 2nd vice-president who explained to me what a wardroom staff member in the Royal Canadian Navy is responsible for! (This can be very useful boys if you ever want to know where the nearest brothel is for a pint of beer) and last, (but not least) we have Gary Gordon, executive secretary, who knows when the "chips" are down but, don't worry.. the "steaks" are looking pretty high for George Brown College.

Frosh Failure or Success

Were the Frosh of George Brown College enthusiastic, co-operative, and proud to be part of G.B.C? Take a minute and picture just how many first year students of Nassau, Teraville, and Dartnell campuses participated in the orientation - not too bloody many! Maybe the students don't like the idea of public humiliation. Perhaps they feel it's better to laugh than to be laughed at. Well, I am a first year student and I participated in the frosh activities and I classify myself as an individual. If I can take ridicule and being laughed at, why the hell couldn't the rest of the G.B.C. frosh? Froshits only comes once in a lifetime and if you miss it you have missed one of the most memorial things in your life.

The seniors are not as bloody bad, if not more at fault, for Froshite fatigue because they failed to encourage and personally participate in initiating the first year students. One would think if you are given an opportunity to give orders to inferiors that you would take advantage of it.

In summary of froshits all I can say is that if it wasn't for those who did participate George Brown College would never have been known to exist. However, we do exist, but just barely because of faulty organization and lack of enthusiasm.

WHAT IS DRUG ADDICTION

SOCIETY IS GREATLY TROUBLED by wide-spread reports of the use of drugs in harmful ways. This concern arises from the fact that we do not now have to go to the underworld to find people who abuse drugs, but come upon them in all social classes and in all economic divisions.

No clear guidance is at hand about what steps to take. The general ignorance about the nature and effect of various drugs may be traced to the moral detestation of most people have of the improper use of drugs, and their consequent inclination not to think about this unpleasant subject. Without information about the incidence of the habit and about the legal, medical and social treatment of it, and the causes that give rise to it, people are at a loss.

Account must be taken by those who are leaders in their communities of these undoubted facts; in a mere half century man has flipped from the horse and buggy into the jet plane and space travel, and within man himself old faiths have crumbled without the development of strong new faiths to replace them. These events cause hitherto unknown stresses. The pressures and demands of society are too much for some people, and they turn to drugs.

IN THE SPOON

There is, however, a healthy spirit in Canada of disbelief in drugs as the answer to weak knees and sick souls. As individuals and as a nation we can not allow ourselves to sink into the position forecast by Aldous Huxley in his Brave New World where all we needed to do if we feel worried, anxious, or upset is to take a pill.

Nevertheless, we are conscious that some people find it easier to turn to chemical comfort than to learn to handle their problems in a mature way. Having found a substance that relieves his feelings, a man may return to it again and again for help. Thus he becomes accustomed to depending upon the drug instead of his own inner resources and those offered by his family, by his church, by science and by society.

An individual takes drugs because they offer an easy short-cut way of escape from the reality in which he is involved.

We must be careful in our application of the word "drug". A drug is anything used as a medicine, and the preparation of drugs has been an honourable profession for many centuries.

Pharmacy had its beginnings when human beings first recognized a sensation of pain and consciously administered something in an effort to relieve their discomfort. It may have been abundance of plant leaves wrapped around an open wound, or perhaps a broth of tree bark to relieve a burning fever.

The pharmaceutical industry has been continuous in its search for better medicines. As research has progressed and as more specific medications have become available, mankind has been able to eliminate many of the diseases which were formerly prevalent and of serious statistical importance.

However, drugs are not always taken with common sense. They are used by people who feel small in the face of the complexities of life, by people who seek a temporary feeling of importance, by people who wish to depress their anxiety or to raise their spirits, or by people who desire to experience hallucinations. It is this unnatural self-indulgence that is the damaging use of drugs.

Is it possible for a class to design their own crest for their course. I notice that no class has a crest yet and no-one ever mentions it. Is there some regulation that disallows students from taking pride in their course and making it known by a crest made by ourselves?

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

This is the first year of operation for the Student Athletic Association. The success or failure of our program will depend not only on the elected officers, but on the student body as well.

The recreational program should be under way by the time you read this column. The finances to sponsor this extensive program come from the student body, so it is up to you to make sure your money is well spent.

Intra-mural sports will be commencing on Monday, October 14th, in the Nassau Campus gymnasium. The first sport will be basketball. Notices will be posted a week or two beforehand.

Our teams - basketball, volleyball, hockey, and soccer - play against students from a number of other colleges. The competition in Varsity League is very keen, which provides for high calibre play.

We have a fine soccer team which has the potential to be a leading contender in our league. There seems to be a great deal of interest from our first-year students in our other var-

Subject: Profit from Soft-Drink Vending Machines.

Profit from soft-drink vending

The soft drink vending machines located at Nassau Campus were designed to provide the student body with refreshment. The monies realized through the sale of soft drinks in this manner has been channelled to a "Staff Advisory Account". This account has been inaugurated to provide funds for a major student-orientated project; housing, frat house or other plans of a similar nature.

As we have been recently informed that the money in this account is presently frozen because of legal technicalities. All aspects of this legal entanglement must remain confidential for now, but information will be released as soon as it becomes feasible and practical.

Monies realized from vending machines at other campuses will be used for the maintenance of the various "cafeterias". The destination of surplus profit is still pending.

sity sports as well. Our varsity teams deserve a great deal of support, which they have not received in the past. The students of this college seem to lack that intangible, called SCHOOL SPIRIT.

We hope the Athletic Association will be able to change this situation by promoting greater student participation.

Mr. Lloyd

I drive a motorbike to George Brown College from a point ten miles west of Toronto each day. I do this for the simple fact that it is economical and fast. Last year, we were allowed to park our bikes by the guard house but because of construction, this year we are unable to do so. However, I have noticed that all the construction material has been cleared away recently and the guard still refuses to let me park there. I find it ridiculous to have to pay the price of a car at a parking lot. I may as well try to buy a car and travel in comfort -- but this defeats my primary purpose of having a bike. Is it not at all possible to find a few squares feet somewhere for the few cycles to park without the guard rudely telling us to get off the property with our bikes?

FROSHITES

DAY ONE

Day one was supposed to be the day in which all freshmen came to school as freshmen. If you could have seen how many freshmen did come as grubs, you would think that George Brown College has an enrollment of about a hundred.

The "whistle" and "I am a dead horse" was introduced to the frosh at the Nassau Assembly where the grubs had a chance to play dead horses.

The frosh of survey and construction at the Terulay Street Campus were initiated to clean their cafeteria. Then came the final treat, the frosh marched up Yonge Street to City Hall playing dead horses along the way.

The Terulay took five S.A.C. officials to get the show on the road. That doesn't sound like co-operation to me.

The seniors of G.B.C. were given the privilege of ordering the frosh around but they didn't. Perhaps the fact that this was the first year for frosh initiation and the seniors had to 'play it by ear' had a lot to do with it.

DAY TWO

On day two the Nassau, Terulay, and Dartnell campuses took tours of each others' domains. These tours were designed to familiarize the frosh with their other campuses.

Nothing too much happened again as the seniors failed to participate in initiating the frosh. The Nassau frosh rebelled at the S.A.C. office and stole the S.A.C. helmets as trophies of their rebellion. This rebellion was soon put down, but a few helmets were misplaced by some careless seniors.

Len Zucker, a S.A.C. member tried to attack Colin Groom, a frosh with shaving cream and was forcefully defeated by five other frosh members. Len of course became the victim of his own mischievous actions. Jack Hampsey also paid for the error of his ways when he found himself alone with a group of shaving cream totting frosh.

DAY THREE

At one o'clock on the third day of orientation the frosh and seniors of Dartnell and Nassau Campuses marched down Spadina and Dundas Streets to the Terulay Campus. Along the parade route dead horses were seen and eggs, tomatoes, and shaving cream pies were thrown. Balloons and pails of water were also thrown as the frosh and seniors met in hand to hand combat.

Upon arrival at City Hall the frosh and seniors were greeted by Controller Margaret Campbell and Ron Lessley. Tours of City Hall were conducted as the atmosphere of the orientation seemed to die down.

A fashion show was put on by the girls in the hairdressing

Course of Nassau which proved very appealing to the guys of G.B.C. The fashion show was an enjoyable feature of the City Hall orientation.

The variety show was put on by several singers all of whom I do believe were not from George Brown College. Their voices were in Good Shape and they had to be noted as good entertainers. At five o'clock the frosh were dismissed as official George Brownians and a football game was conducted between the seniors and the juniors.

At 8.30 that night a dance was held in Nathan Phillips Square featuring The Tongs. This dance was the finale of the frosh activities. To me the dance topped the orientation as one big failure.

STEAM BATHS

To many people, a steam bath sounds like a Chinese Torture Chamber of long ago. For those people who believe this misconception, there may still be help for you.

The International Steam Bath on Spadina Ave. -- just up from Nassau Street Campus houses a very comfortable lounge and inviting West/Dry Steam Rooms. I tried this place once after a rather rough day at school and after an hour of relaxing completely, I felt refreshed and invigorated.

For one dollar, a student can have hot or cold showers, two kinds of Saunas, watch T.V., do some homework, or just lie around and relax. The dollar is good for a 24 hour period and I'm sure that that this is a better offer than any other steam baths. For those athletics that require a special massage after a hard work-out--this has got to be the place for a half hour in the hands of the pro who relaxes muscles that you didn't even know you had.

VARSITY SOCCER

The first game of this season was played on Saturday, September 21. Our team travelled to Seneca College, where they were beaten by a score of 6 to 1. The lone goal-scorer for G.B.C. was Larry Chont, who played an outstanding game. Erika Lakowski and S. Dachert were defensive stand-outs. Lack of practice and the absence of some key players hurt our team.

The game on Tuesday, September 24, was a different story. The addition of several players revitalized our team, as G.B.C. completely outplayed and outclassed Centennial College to win the game by the score of 10 to 0. Scoring for G.B.C. were Mike Tymciw with 4; Corads Sessa with 3; Gerald Guerita, John Horvitz, and J.C. Corcoran with singles. Playing on a rain-soaked field failed to slow down G.B.C. as they recorded their first win of the season.

It looks like the beginning of a very successful year.

A Day in the Life of the Presidents Wallace

The President and Mr. or Mrs. Wallace awoke at 6:50, simultaneously, one assisting the other. George got up at once, went to the window and looked out at the South Lawn. The rising sun sent a long shadow from the iron jockey below.

"Splendid morning, sugar," he said. "I think the first thing I'm gonna do today is cut loose another state. Let's see, now—how many we got left to dump?"

"Gee, honey," said Lurleen. "I think we've gone and whittled this crummy of Union down to about thirty-one or -two. How about frein' Montana next?"

"Montana? That one of ours?"

"So they tell me."

"OK, then as soon as I get to the office, I'll—"

"Hey, just a minute, George; it's my turn to run the country."

"No it ain't, sugar; you had it yesterday."

"But I couldn't do anything with it; it was that time of the month."

"Too bad; that ain't in the Constitution."

"It's in mine."

By 7:15, when they had almost finished dressing, their Presidencies had agreed to make America ins until noon, miss until six, and then give it to the National Guard while they got some chicken and went to a drive-in. As he combed his hair, George wondered if Negroes really did have natural rhythm. For several minutes he tried to think of all the Negroes he knew who couldn't dance; but he finally came up with just A. Philip Randolph and a headache.

"Hey, honey," said Lurleen, "know who I'm seein' today? The wife of the President of Ghana."

"Why? We short a maid?"

"Say, I'll bet she is a classy cleaner. Maybe she'd like to come in once or twice a week for a little diplomacy and light housework."

"Sure; it could be a great if'l cultural exchange. She could show you how they dust in Gonna—"

"Ghana."

"—And you could show her what knives and forks are for."

With a sudden rush of affection, she embraced him and cried, "Oh, I just love you, George!"

"Likewise, sugar. 'May your days be merry and bright.'"

"—And may all your Christmases be whic."
